NEWLY CLAD BAND ARRIVES IN PROVIDENCE

by Irvin Lustig '83

Amidst the gloomy backdrop of Reaganomics, war in the Middle East, and censored halftime shows, the Brown Band is happy to bring you some good news from College Hill; the new band uniforms have arrived! The first phase of the uniform campaign produced such a fantastic response that we were able to debut them at the U.R.I. football game in September.

The new uniforms have been well received by many of those affiliated with the university community. The uniforms consist of brown sweaters with a red-white-red stripe across the torso and a patch on the left breast. Each member wears a shirt underneath their sweater, which is identical to the sweater except for the patch. The shirts have really come in handy at warm weather games. For the first time in many years, every band member received virgin white pants from the band as part of the uniform. We also purchased brand new WATERPROOF (as has been demonstrated already at the Penn and Cornell games) parkas.

after reaching all of the Band Alumni and Band parents last spring, the uniform campaign is only $1500 from its goal. We would like to finish up our campaign by the end of the year; with a little luck (and a few more donations!) we will do just that.

The Brown Band would like to thank all of you who have contributed to the campaign. We hope that you, as a loyal band alumnus, will enjoy the new band uniforms as much as we do.
